

Best Things for Schoolchildren

The following happened when the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the Paeumui Chollikil Schoolchildren's Palace.

After learning in detail about its renovation and operation, he stressed as follows: The Party attaches great importance to the work for the rising generations and gives priority to it, and it is not because it has become richer today. Our Party is set to do whatever it can for our children at the highest level even though it is pressed hard for everything because how to bring up the rising generations is a vital issue decisive of the future destiny of our revolution.

The officials reproached themselves for failing to properly follow his ennobling intention to provide the children with the best educational conditions and environment.

Noting that the schoolchildren's palace is an important extracurricular educational base which plays a very important role in the emotional and social education of the rising generations, he underscored the need to renovate the one and only palace in the province as good as that in the capital city and cultivate the talents of children on the same level as those in the capital city.

Thanks to his loving care, all our children, whether they live in the capital city or local areas, in towns or mountain villages, are preparing themselves to become pillars who will shoulder the future of the country. That day, the officials were firmly resolved to remain faithful to his lofty intention.
